Day 1: Marrakech / Riad Siwan

Arrive in Marrakech and settle into your traditional riad, a hidden oasis built around an interior courtyard—quiet, cool and restorative within the Medina's lively maze of streets. If time allows, take a gentle walk through the Medina or step onto your rooftop terrace as the city eases into evening. Listen as the call to prayer—the adaan—ripples across rooftops, a daily rhythm that briefly draws the city into shared stillness. Tonight, gather for a relaxed welcome dinner and your first taste of Morocco's hospitality. Enjoy slow-cooked tagines and freshly baked bread, paired with glasses of mint tea. Here, attay is more than a drink—it's a gesture of welcome, offered with care and intention, and the first thread in the shared experience ahead.

Day 2: High Atlas / Taourirt Kasbah / Zagora

After breakfast, travel south over the High Atlas via the dramatic Tizi n'Tichka Pass. This winding road climbs through mountain landscapes shaped by terraces, forests and centuries of movement between Marrakech and Morocco's southern reaches. Stop in Ouarzazate to visit Taourirt Kasbah, a striking example of southern Morocco's earthen architecture once tied to regional power and trade. Wander its narrow corridors and shaded courtyards, where thick adobe walls and carved details reveal a blend of defense and artistry. Continue into the Draa Valley, where a ribbon of date palms shelters villages built of sun-dried mud brick. For centuries, this oasis corridor guided trans-Saharan caravans carrying salt, gold and ideas between North and West Africa. Arrive in Zagora by late afternoon, a frontier town at the desert's edge. As the light softens over the palms, settle in and enjoy a relaxed dinner beneath the first hints of Saharan sky.

Day 3: Draa Valley—Amezrou and Tamegroute

Today, explore some of the Drâa Valley's most culturally rich communities, where craft and daily rhythm remain deeply tied to place. In Tamegroute, visit workshops known for their distinctive green-glazed ceramics, fired in kilns fueled by palm fronds. Watch potters shape and glaze their work—objects made for everyday use, carrying an artistry passed through generations. Step into the centuries-old Koranic library, where time-darkened manuscripts hint at the region's scholarly and spiritual heritage. Continue to the nearby kasbah of Amezrou, historically known for its silversmithing tradition. Wander narrow passageways and pause for mint tea. Practice a few Tamazight greetings with your hosts—Azul (hello) and Tanemmirt (thank you)—small exchanges that bring the day's encounters to life in a personal way.

Day 4: Erg Chigaga / Private 4x4 Tour

Begin at an unhurried pace, then trade paved roads for open desert as you travel by 4x4 across the stony reg and low dune fields of Morocco's southern Sahara. Your guide, Lahcen—born and raised in this region—shares an insider's knowledge of desert plants, wildlife and the stories carried by its sands. If you wish, take an optional camel ride across the dunes, moving at the timeless pace once essential to desert travel and trade. As dusk settles, arrive at camp in the vast dunes of Erg Chigaga—one of Morocco's most remote dune systems. Gather for dinner beneath an expansive sky. Later, meet nomad musicians whose rhythms echo across the sand, turning the evening into something intimate, celebratory and deeply rooted in place.

Discovering Our Planet Together

Day 5: Erg Chigaga / Lake Iriki / Private Caravan Experience

Walk a stretch of the old Salt Road with Lahcen and local nomads, following routes once traveled by caravans moving between oases and distant markets. Learn to read the desert through subtle signs: wind-sculpted ripples, beetle tracks, hardy shrubs and the quiet logic of survival in a seemingly spare world. Pause for a picnic and taste abadir, savory bread baked directly in the sand—simple, hearty and steeped in tradition. If you'd like, join in the preparation, connecting through the hands-on rituals that have sustained desert travelers for generations. Later, travel by 4x4 to the open pans of Lake Iriki, scanning for fossils and desert traces. When welcomed, share tea with nomadic families—an everyday ritual of hospitality that becomes especially meaningful in remote places. As the day unfolds, hear about conservation efforts in the region, including initiatives that support fragile desert ecosystems and native wildlife (sightings vary). Return to camp for a quiet evening under a million stars—an unforgettable reminder that here, nature and culture are inseparable.

Day 6: Valley of a Thousand Kasbahs / Skoura

Rise early to watch sunrise spill across the dunes, casting long shadows and soft light over the Sahara. Begin your journey north, pausing in photogenic desert villages such as Ouled Driss, where daily life unfolds in the same warm earth tones as the surrounding landscape. Follow the Draa's palm belt to Agdz—whose name means “resting place” in Tamazight—a subtle clue to the valley's long role as a corridor of movement and exchange. Continue through the Valley of a Thousand Kasbahs, where fortified towers and earthen villages speak to centuries of family life, trade networks and the importance of irrigation. Arrive in Skoura, a broad palm grove stitched together by canals, gardens and shaded pathways. Settle into your lodge, a cool refuge humming with cicadas and birdsong, and gather for a relaxed evening meal as the oasis quiets around you.

Day 7: Skoura / Private Pottery Experience

Walk through Skoura's palm grove with your local guide, Abdessamad, learning how families have managed water for generations using khettaras—ingenious underground channels that distribute life-giving water across the oasis. Notice the layered agriculture that makes oasis living possible: dates high above, fruit trees in the middle canopy, and vegetables growing below in the shade. Along the way, listen for hoopoes and bee-eaters, and catch the subtle fragrance of blossoms carried on the breeze. This afternoon, visit Mohamed—one of Skoura's last traditional potters—whose family name, Al Fakhar, means “The Potter.” Watch as he shapes utilitarian pieces on a foot-powered wheel, then try your hand at forming a simple bowl yourself. It's a rare chance to experience living tradition not as a performance, but as everyday craft.

Discovering Our Planet Together

Day 8: Skoura / Private Cooking Class

Begin with a relaxed cooking class hosted in a palm grove home. Travel by tuk-tuk to meet your local hosts, then learn Moroccan techniques from the inside out—measuring spices by scent, chopping fresh herbs, and experiencing the slow alchemy of tagine cookery. When the meal is ready, gather for a long lunch and enjoy what you’ve created, paired with stories shared across the table. In the afternoon, choose how you’d like to spend your time. Explore storied Kasbah Amridil, return to the pottery studio to collect a rustic keepsake, or simply rest and journal in the quiet beauty of Skoura. However you spend it, the day offers the kind of space that turns travel into connection.

Day 9: Ait Ben Haddou / Ourika Valley

Travel west toward Ait Ben Haddou, the UNESCO-listed ksar of stacked mud-brick homes rising above a shallow riverbed. Walk its narrow passageways and fortified walls, where architecture speaks to both protection and community life along historic caravan routes. Continue with a visit that celebrates Amazigh oral traditions, where songs, jewelry and contemporary expressions honor a culture carried through spoken history—wisdom passed from generation to generation, woven through language and story. Later, cross back over the High Atlas via the Tizi n’Tichka Pass, descending into the greener folds of the Ourika Valley, where mountain life feels suddenly close again.

Day 10: Toubkal National Park

Spend the day exploring trails in and around Toubkal National Park. Choose a route suited to your energy and interest—from gentle valley walks through walnut groves to more challenging paths with expansive views. Your local guide tailors the pace and terrain to match conditions and the group’s ability, sharing the kind of insight that comes only from a lifetime spent on these mountainsides. At midday, arrive in an Amazigh village for a home-cooked meal. Enjoy flatbreads fresh from a traditional clay oven, herb-laced salads and warm conversation that turns lunch into something far more memorable than a stop along the trail. This is mountain life experienced from the inside—simple, generous and deeply human.

Day 11: High Atlas Mountains

Savor a slow morning in the High Atlas. Read on a sun-warmed terrace, watch shepherds trace distant slopes, or simply take in the sweeping mountain vistas that define this region. Those who wish may choose a traditional Moroccan hammam experience—warmth, steam and the cleansing ritual of black soap—emerging refreshed and restored. This evening, gather for a farewell dinner and toast the friendships and landscapes that have shaped your journey. BssaHa—to your health—and to the enduring traditions you’ve encountered along the way.

A Deeper Sense of Place

Unlike tours that rush from sight to sight, our Morocco cultural journey is designed to let you go deeper—into landscapes, communities, traditions and everyday rhythms that define this remarkable country. From unhurried time in oasis valleys and intimate encounters with nomadic guides to shared meals with Amazigh families in the High Atlas, we linger longer where culture is lived and understood. With thoughtfully paced experiences, expert guides and meaningful engagement with people and place, you'll experience a true sense of connection to Morocco's heritage and heart.

1 Venture Deep into Morocco's Remote Sahara Dunes

Experience the Sahara in Erg Chigaga—one of Morocco's most secluded dune systems—guided by a lifelong desert resident. Walk timeworn caravan paths, share traditional foods, and spend unhurried time with nomadic hosts in a setting that feels truly expansive and far from the crowds.

2 Walk the Ancient Salt Road With Nomads

Follow a historic trade route on foot alongside local nomads, learning to read the desert through tracks, plants and subtle shifts in terrain. Along the way, share food and conversation—an immersion in lived knowledge passed down through generations.

3 Small Groups Make Intimate Access Possible

With a maximum of just 12 guests, our small group size allows access to spaces where larger groups are neither practical nor appropriate. This scale supports unhurried encounters, meaningful conversation and hands-on participation in cultural activities with our hosts, while respecting customs and traditions in the communities we visit.

4 Three Nights in the High Atlas for a Deeper Cultural Stay

Spend three nights among Amazigh mountain communities, allowing time to truly connect with the traditions, values and daily rhythms that remain foundational to Morocco's cultural identity.

5 Share a Home-Cooked Meal With an Amazigh Family

After a guided hike tailored to your ability, sit down for a meal hosted in a mountain village home. This warm, personal exchange offers rare space for conversation, storytelling and insight into High Atlas life.

6 Slow the Pace for Meaningful Connection

Rather than rushing through a long list of stops, linger longer in fewer regions—Skoura, the Drâa Valley and Sahara, and the High Atlas—so relationships, understanding and a genuine sense of place can unfold naturally.

Important Information About This Trip

Travel in Morocco is primarily done by road, as domestic flights can be unreliable and are not the most practical way to connect the regions included on this itinerary. Driving also allows for flexibility and meaningful stops in smaller, less touristed communities along the way—particularly through the High Atlas, the Draa Valley, and the oasis towns of the south. While a few travel days will be long and include extended road transfers, the itinerary is intentionally paced to balance these distances with multiple-night stays, helping maximize the time spent on the ground in each location once you arrive.

Getting There & Getting Home

We recommend arriving in Marrakesh the night before Day 1 so you can rest from your travels and begin the trip refreshed. Guests arriving on Day 1 must reach Marrakesh in time to meet your Expedition Leader and fellow travelers at the group hotel in time for a welcome orientation at 6 pm.

You may depart Marrakesh any time after 1 pm on the final day.
